WISCONSIN RAPIDS DAILY TRIBUNE

EIGHTH YEAR—NO. 2728. WISCONSIN RAPIDS, WIS., WEDNESDAY JUNE 7, 1922. PRICE THREE CENTS

RAILROAD MEN WILL VOTE ON STRIKE

COUNCIL AWARDS PAVING CONTRACT TO BOSSERT CO.

VOTE TO PUT IN BRICK PAVING ON DOWNTOWN STREETS; NO REDUCTION IN CITY WAGES FOR PRESENT.

The contract for the city's 1922 street paving program was awarded in full to the Bossert Coal Co., of this city at the meeting of the city council last night. When the bids were received by the Board of Public Works May 18 it was found that the Bossert Co., and the Ule Paving Co., the two low bidders on the job, were so close in their estimates that the decision as to which should get the contract hinged on whether the three down town blocks involved were to be paved with brick or concrete. The Ule concern was low by a few dollars on the straight concrete program, but the Bossert company had a slight advantage if brick were to be used.

Decide Upon Brick

The city council last night decided in favor of brick for the blocks on Vine street, Second street south, and First avenue south, and awarded the contract to Bossert as the lowest bidder on the job under those specifications.

Loser Protests

Following the decision of the council, H. H. Blackburn of the Ule company arose in protest, and asserted that the award was unfair to his concern and not made on the merits of the respective bids. He was silenced by Mayor Roenius, who stated that insinuations against the honor of the city council and the Board of Public Works would not be tolerated in the council chamber.

The original proposals of the two concerns as received by the Board of Public Works May 18 were:

Bossert Coal Co.—Concrete curb and gutter, 75c; reinforced concrete paving, $2.26; non-reinforced concrete paving, $2.14; brick paving, $3.82.

Ule Paving Co.—Concrete curb and gutter, 70c; reinforced concrete paving, $2.25; non-reinforced concrete paving, $2.11; brick paving, $4.09.

Keep Wages Same

The matter of the wage scale for city employes was again brought up for consideration, and the council voted to maintain the present scale of 45c per hour for regularly employed workmen. It was provided however that the city engineer might engage special help at what he considered a just scale of wages for the work to be done.

Decide Against Carnivals

Requests for permission to bring street carnivals to the city, made on behalf of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and the Tri-City Baseball committee were both refused. The Eagles, represented by George Moulton, asked permission to bring a carnival here the week of June 26. The baseball committee, represented by John Farley, T. P. Peerenboom, and L. P. Daniels, desired to have their entertainment here the week of June 19.

The question of the city paying part of the expense of replacing the sunken sidewalk on First street north, from the Hotel Witter to the Miller garage, was brought up, and was referred to the Board of Public Works, the City Engineer, the City Attorney, and the Sidewalk committee of the council for further consideration. The sinking in the sidewalk was said to have been caused by the high water in the river this spring, which loosened the earth beneath and to installation of white way lamp posts.

Buy Band Uniforms

Other matters acted upon last night included an appropriation for the purchase of new uniforms for the band which was passed, and an appropriation of $50 to aid the American Legion in meeting expenses incurred through the recent Memorial Day celberation. A new Ford truck for the city engineers department was voted.

The council also awarded a contract for two new traffic standards to be erected at the corners of Grand and Third avenues and at Oak and Second streets. The new standards are to consist of tall poles with signs, "keep to the right" on top, which will be illuminated at night.

A new sidewalk was ordered on Mill street between Second and Third streets, and it was voted to install an arc-light at the corner of McKinley and Ninth streets, and to build a concrete curb and gutter on Seventh street south. The matter of the extension of Eleventh avenue north was referred to the City Attorney and the Northwestern railroad.

The graduation exercises opened this morning with the following program: enrollment, games and May Pole Dance by the model school pupils, contest, prize awards, rehearsal of graduation exercises and a picnic in the Normal grove where the graduates and their families gathered. Callahan At Rotary

Supt. Callahan was the guest of honor at the luncheon of the Rotary Club this noon and gave an interesting talk on schooling and education. He chose to show the difference between the two saying that many men had the opportunities of schooling but were never educated while others had little opportunity for schooling but took advantages and procured for themselves a good education. He also pointed out how much could have been done with the money expended for wars during the past century and ventured the opinion that the use of money for education would have prevented wars. He rapped the men who nowadays are complaining about paying taxes for the education of other people's children.

The list of graduates of the county schools will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Attends Convention

E. H. Aldrich, city engineer, left today to attend the 24th annual convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, which opened its first formal session at Appleton this afternoon.

Car Extension Is Killed By Close Vote In Council

By a vote of 8 to 7, the city council rejected the petition to ask the Railroad Commission to hold a hearing here relative to the street car line extension across the new bridge, which was asked for in a recent petition signed by Wisconsin Rapids people. The vote was taken following a long discussion of the situation by councilmen. and officials of the street car company at the meeting last night.

Board Makes Report

In bringing up the matter Mayor Roenius asked the aldermen who were members of the Board of Public works to give their opinions individually. Ald. Link was very heartily in favor of having the line extended across the bridge. Ald. John Roberts was of the same opinion and said he wanted to see a vote taken on the matter in which the council would have an opportunity to register their stand and he wished personally to cast his vote in favor of the project. Ald. Rickman stated that while he was anxious to see it cross he was non-committal in view of the financial condition of the company. Ald. Whitrock was opposed to the project and read a report stating his position in which he said that it was an unfair request to make of the company.

Officials In Statement

L. M. Nash. president of the Wisconsin Rapids Street Railway company restated the financial situation of the company declaring that it would cost $4,000 alone to purchase the frogs needed in the switching apparatus for the extension. He said the company could not entertain the extension project at this time and assured the council that because the extension was not made that the car line would not be removed from Grand Avenue except upon orders from the council. W. F. Kellogg, a director in the company entered several other objections to the proposed extension from the standpoint of the company.

Ald. James Lynch entered a suggestion that the city take over the line saying that the public eventually would determine the method of transportation and that it was his opinion if the company would not make the extension because of the dangers of involving it in financial difficulties, that it should be cooperatively owned.

Mayor Roenius drew an analogy between the telephone situation at Tomah, where. after a severe storm the company was put out of commission and service was suspended, and he did not want to urge anything that would jeopardize the financial condition of the company. He did state however, that he favored the extension if it were only possible. The mayor assured the council that the only action that could be taken was to vote on a motion requesting a hearing of the Railroad commission here on the project. The vote by acclamation was so close the mayor called for a rising vote and the motion to request a hearing was lost by a vote of 8 to 7. The matter would have to be dropped Mayor Roenius stated after the vote was taken as there was no further recourse.

LA FOLLETTE HITS COURT OPINION IN CORONADO CASE

WISCONSIN SENATOR ISSUES STATEMENT ATTACKING SUPREME COURT DECISION IN FAMOUS STRIKE CASE

(By Associated Press)

Washington, June 7—Declaring that the supreme court decision in the Coronado coal case was the "most ominous in what it foreshadows in the future of union labor in this country," Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, today issued a statement in which he criticizes the court. The opinion he stated, was "significant because of what the court says on questions not involved in the case rather than because of anything that is actually decided."

Six Lines Enough

After reviewing the conditions which led up to and prevailed during the strike in the Arkansas coal mines in 1914 upon which the action was based, the Wisconsin senator declared, "a six line decision was all that was required to dispose of the case on its merit for the supreme court was reluctantly obliged to admit the fact as I have stated," the reference being his assertion that "there is not and never was any case against the defendant in the federal court."

The supreme court, however, Senator LaFollette stated, "went out of its way to prepare twenty-nine pages to berate the defendant and to characterize them as outlaws, and the chief justice went so far as to add 'circumstances are such as to warrant a regret that in our view of the federal jurisdiction we cannot affirm the judgment.'"

Court Changed Law

"The court also went out of it's way," the senator stated, "to change the law as it has existed in the United States since he beginning of the government, that unincorporated associations such as are involved here could not be used as an entity."

Reviewing what he stated was the authority of the court upon which it based its findings, Senator LaFollette charged that "Chief Justice Taft neglected to state that as a result of the Taft-Vale case, the British parliament passed a statute which cut up that decision root and branch and made it impossible for an English court to ever render a similar decision."

"No doubt our supreme court feels secure behind the bulwark of the written constitution, the meaning of which that court has arrogated to itself the funcion of finally deermining" the senator concluded.

Morgan Will Have No Campaign Time Until Next Month

Madison, Wis., June 7—The heavy work of his department is to occupy the attention of Attorney General William J. Morgan, unanimous choice of the Citizens Republican State Conference as its candidate for governor in the September primaries, during the remainder of June.

Then the attorney general, who during the last election won the title of "Fighting Bill Morgan," through his single handed campaigning against the Nonpartisan league, will start to carry his fight for election as governor, to the people of the state.

Received Record Vote

Attorney General Morgan in the primary elections of 1920 was nominated by the largest vote ever cast in a Republican primary. This support, he believes came to him through his direct appeal to the people with whom he talked over issues of the election in a speaking tour that covered all of Wisconsin.

Again this year, as a candidate for governor, Mr. Morgan will go before the voters with his campaign for election. He plans to reach all sections of the state in a speaking tour that will bring him in touch with the elements of the people.

Will Recite Record

His record as attorney general which includes the institution of anti-trust actions involving over 200 corporations, and the successful settlement of a large proportion of this number, will be recounted, together with the other accomplishments of an administration that has resulted in the determination of a great number of important legal problems.

The attorney general will cooperate with the other candidates on the ticket endorsed by the Citizens Republican state conference, in seeking election. Meetings are being held between the candidates to map out their plans and to prepare to get the campaign machinery in full motion.

Hail Brookhart Victory As Progressive Triumph

Washington, June 7—The victory of Col. S. W. Brookhart in the race for the Republican nomination for United States Senator in the Iowa primaries yesterday was hailed as a sharp rebuke to the Harding administration by Senate progressives.

Senator LaFollette viewed Col. Brookhart's success as the sharpest challenge the administration has yet received.

Senator Norris, Nebraska, said: "The victory is one of the greatest ever scored in behalf of progressive principles. Col. Brookhart's nomination will mean a great victory for better government and is an unmistakable indication of the rising tide against reactionism and misgovernment."

Senators Cummins and Rawson of Iowa were not so well pleased with the result, but refused to comment, and it is thought probable that they will support Brookhart against the Democratic nominee.

LA FOLLETTE HITS COURT OPINION IN CORONADO CASE

WISCONSIN SENATOR ISSUES STATEMENT ATTACKING SUPREME COURT DECISION IN FAMOUS STRIKE CASE

(By Associated Press)

Washington, June 7—Declaring that the supreme court decision in the Coronado coal case was the "most ominous in what it foreshadows in the future of union labor in this country," Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, today issued a statement in which he criticizes the court. The opinion he stated, was "significant because of what the court says on questions not involved in the case rather than because of anything that is actually decided."

After reviewing the conditions which led up to and prevailed during the strike in the Arkansas coal mines in 1914 upon which the action was based, the Wisconsin senator declared, "a six line decision was all that was required to dispose of the case on its merit for the supreme court was reluctantly obliged to admit the fact as I have stated," the reference being his assertion that "there is not and never was any case against the defendant in the federal court."

Court Changed Law

"The court also went out of it's way," the senator stated, "to change the law as it has existed in the United States since he beginning of the government, that unincorporated associations such as are involved here could not be used as an entity."

Reviewing what he stated was the authority of the court upon which it based its findings, Senator LaFollette charged that "Chief Justice Taft neglected to state that as a result of the Taft-Vale case, the British parliament passed a statute which cut up that decision root and branch and made it impossible for an English court to ever render a similar decision."

"No doubt our supreme court feels secure behind the bulwark of the written constitution, the meaning of which that court has arrogated to itself the funcion of finally deermining" the senator concluded.

Local Scouts Will Hike To Ten Mile Creek Camp

Boy Scouts of the Wisconsin Rapids Council will have an opportunity to take a two days adventure hike to a specially prepared camp on Ten Mile Creek next week, Scout Executive E. H. Justice announced today.

The scouts of the Port Edwards and Nekoosa troops will leave Tuesday morning, June 13, spend Tuesday night at the camp, and return Wednesday evening. The Wisconsin Rapids and Biron scouts will go Thursday morning, June 15, and will remain until Friday evening.

An attractive camp site has been located in advance, and tents will be pitched to furnish sleeping quarters. Straw beds will be provided, but each boy is expected to bring with him his own blankets, and sufficient food to last him for the two days.

A special bulletin, together with an application blank for the camp, has been mailed to every scout, and it is expected that there will be a large turnout for the hike.

Fire Destroys Roof Of Plover Depot Water Tank

Fire which started at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon burned the roof of the water tank at the Green Bay and Western and Soo line depot at Plover.

A truck from the Stevens Point fire department was called to assist the Plover force and the flames were extinguished before they spread to adjoining buildings.

Elaborate festivities will be inaugurated in Belgrade today in connection with the marriage of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia and Princess Marie of Roumania.

Morgan Will Have No Campaign Time Until Next Month

Madison, Wis., June 7—The heavy work of his department is to occupy the attention of Attorney General William J. Morgan, unanimous choice of the Citizens Republican State Conference as its candidate for governor in the September primaries, during the remainder of June.

Then the attorney general, who during the last election won the title of "Fighting Bill Morgan," through his single handed campaigning against the Nonpartisan league, will start to carry his fight for election as governor, to the people of the state.

Received Record Vote

Attorney General Morgan in the primary elections of 1920 was nominated by the largest vote ever cast in a Republican primary. This support, he believes came to him through his direct appeal to the people with whom he talked over issues of the election in a speaking tour that covered all of Wisconsin.

Again this year, as a candidate for governor, Mr. Morgan will go before the voters with his campaign for election. He plans to reach all sections of the state in a speaking tour that will bring him in touch with the elements of the people.

Will Recite Record

His record as attorney general which includes the institution of anti-trust actions involving over 200 corporations, and the successful settlement of a large proportion of this number, will be recounted, together with the other accomplishments of an administration that has resulted in the determination of a great number of important legal problems.

The attorney general will cooperate with the other candidates on the ticket endorsed by the Citizens Republican state conference, in seeking election. Meetings are being held between the candidates to map out their plans and to prepare to get the campaign machinery in full motion.

Hail Brookhart Victory As Progressive Triumph

Washington, June 7—The victory of Col. S. W. Brookhart in the race for the Republican nomination for United States Senator in the Iowa primaries yesterday was hailed as a sharp rebuke to the Harding administration by Senate progressives.

Senator LaFollette viewed Col. Brookhart's success as the sharpest challenge the adininistration has yet received.

Senator Norris, Nebraska, said: "The victory is one of the greatest ever scored in behalf of progressive principles. Col. Brookhart's nomination will mean a great victory for better government and is an unmistakable indication of the rising tide against reactionism and misgovernment."

Senators Cummins and Rawson of Iowa were not so well pleased with the result, but refused to comment, and it is thought probable that they will support Brookhart against the Democratic nominee.

Dismissed Operator To Have Hearing On Case

Madison, Wis., June 7—The basis of charges by Gov. J. J. Blaine that the night operator on the Wisconsin capitol switchboard, Joseph J. Hopkins, has been "listening in" on important political conversations between the executive and his lieutenants, will be determined tomorrow at a hearing before the civil service commission.

Hopkins, a second year law student at the University of Wisconsin was discharged by John Morrisey, superintendent of public property two weeks ago, after formal charges had been presented to him by Ralph Immel, executive secretary. Demand for a hearing under the civil service law was made by Hopkins, when the assertion was made that he was giving political information obtained through listening to conversations of Governor Blaine, to the opponents of the governor.

FEAR TIEUP IN RAIL TRAFFIC BY FIRST OF MONTH

WORKERS IN PROTEST AGAINST NEW RULES AND REDUCTIONS IN PAY ORDERED BY LABOR BOARD.

Chicago, Ill., June 7—Strike ballots to be returned by June 30 went out today to railroad employes effected by wage reductions ordered by the United States railroad labor board. The votes will be taken by the individual unions whose 1,200,000 members are effected by the orders either issued or pending.

See Tieup July 1

Paralysis of the nation's railroads by July 1 is held as a possibility as a result of the reductions which have already slashed $110,000,000 from the wages of the workers. The cut is effective July 1.

Meanwhile the board is preparing to hear disputes this month between shop crafts leaders and some of the roads over the alleged unauthorized wage reductions.

Fight Board Order

B. M. Jewel, head of the railway employes department of the American Federation of Labor, who is leading the fight against the board's order, was informed that the first of the hearings will be held tomorrow. Twenty-one reports are sighted for alleged unauthorized wage reductions for the hearing.

Hearings on the disputes are expected to run into several weeks.

It was indicated today that no wage decision for telegraphers, the next class of railroad labor to be taken up by the board, will come from the board for some time.

Shopmen Will Vote

Cincinnati, O., June 7—A double barreled strike ballot calling for a vote by 400,000 railway shopmen of the country on three separate questions was ordered by the executive council of the shop crafts unions here today. Instructions were sent by B. M. Jewel, head of the shop union with headquarters in Chicago, to expedite the printing and distribution of the ballots with all possible speed.

The questions on which the men are to vote whether to quit work or not are:

1. Seven rules including five wiping out time and one-half for over time, promulgated by the railroad labor board with which shopmen are now faced.

2. Farming of shop work to outside firms, illegal installation of piece work, alleged arbitrary and unauthorized reduction of wages on the part of some roads.

3. The wage cut of the labor board announced yesterday effective July 1.

12 Year Old Portage County Boy Catches Foot In Mower

Stevens Point, June 7—Lowell Whitney, age 12, was brought to a Stevens Point hospital this morning with his left foot nearly several as a result of catching it in a moving machine.

The Whitney boy, whose home is on a farm about six miles northeast of Plainfield, was walking in front of a mower driven by his father when he fell and his foot caught in the blades of the machine.

At the hospital this morning it was reported that although the injury was serious the boy would probably not lose the use of his foot.

WHEN?

Has American inventiveness had a set-back since the war? Are Americans no longer so eagerly set for the race? Have we lost our "push" or "punch" or "pep", or whatever it is that men call this driving power of which we had so much before and even during the war?

If we still possess this driving power, it is about time that some of it were exerted on behalf of the airplane industry. We defend our claim to having made the first airplane against all the world. We have abundant proof that we gave the airplane business its initial impulse. And still, at the very time when in other countries the airplane industry is rapidly developing, we seem to be holding back.

France might well serve as an object lesson to us. All over Europe the commercial airplane service is expanding, but France sets us the best example. It is estimated that French commercial airplanes last year covered a distance of more than 60 times around the g[illegible] be[illegible] flying of more than 1[illegible] there occurred only one [illegible] every 800 trips. The Frenc[illegible] ow maintaining schedules w[illegible] efficiency of 97 per cent.

The number of passengers carried was 10,000 and the baggage amounted to 175,000 tons. This makes the airplane service [illegible] than a matter of novel adventure. [illegible] French now point to eight lines in full operation as dependable as railroad or water transportation service. Airplanes from France go to L[illegible] Brussels, Amsterdam, Wa[illegible] lona, Prague, and many othe[illegible] place. Altogether it is a thriving bu[illegible] and the French are entitled to a good deal of credit for it.

But where is our airplane service? Quite aside from what we think of the matter it is safe to say that all the world expected America to go ahead with the development of this new means of transportation. As yet, however, we have given no sign that we are going to assume leadership in the development of the airplane industry. This is all the more to be wondered at since we have everything that is needed for just such an undertaking. When are we going to wake up to the splendid future that awaits in this field?

RATES COMING DOWN

The interstate commerce commission ha[illegible] performed a valuable public service by cutting down railroad freight rate[illegible] on non-agricultural commodities. The time had arrived to give the people some relief. The [illegible]oads can well afford to accept rat[illegible]ich are calculated to yield them [illegible] per cent instead of 6 per cent. Mone[illegible] is cheaper, wages are coming down and profits of 6½ per cent are reasonable.

The cut is deepest in the East and lowest in the West because of the cheaper cost of railroading in the East and the [illegible] haul to [illegible]age. The cut [illegible] a whole averages about 10 per cent. The [illegible] the commission, [illegible] says, will tend to stabilize all business. The rates have been too high, as was shown by the cessation of many lines of busine[illegible] dependent upon rail transportation. Throughout the country the cry has been for a reduction of freight rates. The commission has made a cut as deep as the finances and business of the railroads will permit. Later, when business has developed its normal volume of freight and the cost of transportation becomes lower, rates can be cut still farther.

The reduction of freight rates, which enter into the calculations of almost every business, is an encouraging step toward increased activity and therefore toward solution of the unemployment problem. With increased industrial activity the railroads will get more freight and earn more money.

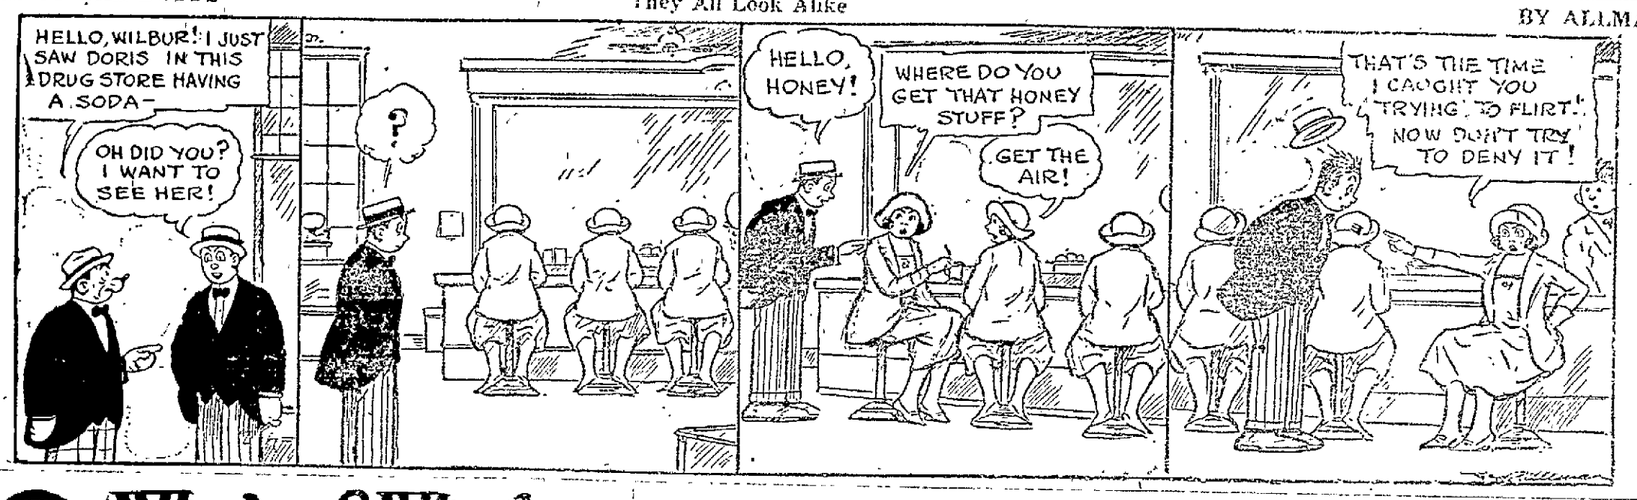
DOINGS OF THE DUFFS — They All Look Alike — BY ALLMAN



On Wings of Wireless

by ARTHUR B. REEVE

START HERE

Guy Garrick and his wireless expert friend, Dick Defoe, seek the trail of two men and a girl who perpetrated a spectacular holdup at a fashionable radio dance near New York. They fear that beautiful Ruth Walden has innocently become a tool in the hands of crooks. Their quest leads them to the "Sea Vamp," a yacht-like houseboat frequented by Ruth and her questionable young friends. They know Ruth often goes there with Glenn Buckley, "the demon lover," who is feared by Ruth's mother and distrusted by themselves.

Now Go On With The Story

"A houseboat—down Duck Harbor way—anchored off one of the best bathing beaches to the west, between us and the city. A lot of the young folks chartered it and chose that spot because it was not far from the Club and yet not too far out from the city. It's a bit out of the way, but that makes them practically own the beach and that end of the harbor for their swimming races and water sports. Some of the sportier older folks go with them—once in a while."

"Well . . . what of it?"

"Just this. There's more deviltry cooked up on the upper deck or in the saloon of the 'Sea Vamp' than . . . than will ever get into Town Topics."

Garrick turned toward the steps.

"Jump into my racer, Dick. You're going to take me to look over this 'Sea Vamp.'"

CHAPTER II

THE SEA VAMP

With a siren blast and a swish of dusty air a yellow racer shot past Garrick and Dick before they were a mile down the turnpike, leaving only a kaleidoscopic impression of a girl at the wheel and a fellow lolling back tensely in the other bucket seat.

"Ruth!" exclaimed Dick as Garrick mechanically threw in more power.

"Who was with her?"

"Glenn Buckley."

Garrick's motor leaped ahead as he stepped on it. Straight-away down the turnpike they raced. Garrick was just about holding his own. But Ruth had the jump and there was not a chance to pass her. She was too wise a driver. Having shot ahead of a car she did not slacken a fraction and she knew that that always makes it nearly impossible to catch one.

A bend in the turnpike toward the south and a dirt road forked off. Ruth slowed up just a bit, turned her hand with a pearly smile. "I've a hunch," she called back teasingly, "you can't follow me, Dick!"

With a wave of her hand suddenly Ruth shot away on the side road to the night, to the north, in a pillar of dust cloud.

Garrick had no desire for a wild-goose quest. He stuck to the concreted turnpike.

"What's the matter, old man? Why so silent?" queried Dick a mile further on. "Suppose you're wondering, like me, how Ruth could have got meshed in the wheels of this gang, if that's what it is, eh?" Dick gazed hopelessly off at the hill and forest north of them with their maze of side roads. "I wish, by gad, a girl was like a car or a boat—something you could steer—right!"

"Time enough to worry when we know more than we think we know," returning Guy, negotiating a left turn that required some skill to make the succeeding hill on high. "After all, Ruth's just a stunning little flapper—facing a very cold and calculating world—with a throughly modern—ill-balanced equipment—that doesn't hug the road like this old car of mine. Except," he paused, then added, "that she has the inherited intelligence, the intuition, the instinct of woman in all the ages . . . The real question is, What will she do with it?"

They swung off at last on another concreted road and finally nosed down the middle of the sand neck that hooked about Duck Harbor. As they drew up, off the road, in a clump of stunted Long Island beach plums, they were astounded to see, a couple of yards ahead on the sort of corduroy road of boards to the beach, Ruth's racer. She had taken a short cut and beaten them by many minutes.

Perhaps a thousand feet further they could see a houseboat at anchor and between them and the boat a knot of young people in bathing suits on the beach.

As Garrick and Dick strolled down the shore, it proved to be Glenn and three or four other fellows in various stages of college careers past or present. They wore class numerals or other marks on their bathing shirts. Glenn was the only one with a college letter—for five minutes of play in a game lost to Princeton. Buckley was a rather handsome lad in spite of his evident satisfaction with himself, tall, slender, with a general impression, "I love the ladies and the ladies love me."

In spite of competition he was monopolizing Vira Gerard. A jet shock of bobbed hair set off big liquid dark eyes, eyes that, if they were the windows of the soul, had a dept that was baffling even to the photographic lens, eyes that dominated her splendid features and gave her that today priceless "camera face."

"Suppose you know this is a private beach?" inquired one of the numerated youngsters as the two approached.

Guy smiled and nodded toward Vira and Glenn. "Between high water and low water marks?"

Down the shore could be seen a canoe coming from the houseboat with a girl, alone. As she beached it, and stepped out, it was Ruth in a smart swimming suit of violet and white that set off daringly her perfectly shaped slender limbs.

The encounter had reached a danger point much as if some upperclassmen had discover a freshman violating some immemorial tradition of at least two college generations.

All stopped, however, as Ruth drew near. She made a glorious picture. She was one of them—but different.

As she came down the beach humming a scrap of a dance to herself, her body swayed with the rhythm and her feet scarcely seemed to touch the sand. Her golden bob framed her sensitive feature in an aura of sunlight. Garrick saw with approval that Ruth had been strong-minded enough to hold to her curls during the day of bobbed hair.

Could these laughing, frank eyes know of crime, of anything coarse?

"You here, Dick?" she danced up to him. "Were you afraid to come alone?" Then with a twinkling shaft at Garrick, "What do you think of us . . . Mr. Sherlocko?"

"Exclusively nifty!" smiled Garrick, then turned quickly as one of the youngsters muttered, "Snooping again! What does he want? You can just bet he's not here for a swim . . . Come on, fellows. He's been here long enough. I move we put them off the beach. Hey, all ready . . . he!" give them the bum's rush!"

A general laugh followed. There was an uncertain motion. Ruth flared.

"Mother . . . we can have Guy and Dick we're not so exclusive that we're rotters! I feel partly responsible for their being here. I waved them on the road and dared them to follow—and here they are—eh, Glenn? Just this once, boys. They'll not bother us again. I'll pony on them. Come on, Glenn, take a little ride and be nice."

BOUNCE OF THE DUFFS — They All Look Alike — BY ALLMAN

On Wings of Wireless

Guy Garrick and his wireless expert friend, Dick Defoe, seek the trail of two men and a girl who perpetrated a spectacular holdup at a fashionable radio dance near New York. They fear that beautiful Ruth Walden has innocently become a tool in the hands of crooks. Their quest leads them to the "Sea Vamp," a yacht-like houseboat frequented by Ruth and her questionable young friends. They know Ruth often goes there with Glenn Buckley, "the demon lover," who is feared by Ruth's mother and distrusted by themselves.

Now Go On With The Story

"A houseboat—down Duck Harbor way—anchored off one of the best bathing beaches to the west, between us and the city. A lot of the young folks chartered it and chose that spot because it was not far from the Club and yet not too far out from the city. It's a bit out of the way, but that makes them practically own the beach and that end of the harbor for their swimming races and water sports. Some of the sportier older folks go with them—once in a while."

"Well . . . what of it?"

"Just this. There's more deviltry cooked up on the upper deck or in the saloon of the 'Sea Vamp' than . . . than will ever get into Town Topics."

Garrick turned toward the steps.

"Jump into my racer, Dick; You're going to take me to look over this 'Sea Vamp.'"

THEATRES

DEMPSEY VS. CARPENTIER, FOREMOST BOXERS OF THE WORLD SEEN AT CLOSE RANGE

Much has been written of Georges Carpentierd, heavyweight boxing champion of Europe. Still more has been said of Jack Dempsey, who defeated him in the memorable battle at Boyle's "Thirty Acres" in Jersey City on July 2, and who now is the undisputed champion of the world.

Tex Rickard, promoter of the match, knew that every man, woman and child interested in sports, would be anxious to see motion picture reproductions of this great contest, and with this in mind he had a battery of twenty cameras at work securing the most intimate views of the two contestants. These pictures, the authentic and official ones, will be seen here at the Palace Theater tonight and tomorrow.

In addition to the actual contest itself these pictures show all the sidelights of daily training for months in advance and all the movements of the two principals up to the time they entered the ring. The battle, blow shown in marvelous close-up motion pictures secured at the ringside.

There is a close view of Carpentier as he climbs into the ring and is, with clasped hands above his head, answering the enthusiastic cheers from the crowd of 90,000 spectators. There is an intimate view of Dempsey as he enters the ring accompanied by his manager, Jack Kearns. But Dempsey does not smile. His brows are ominously lowered as he casts one swift glance to the corner where his opponent stands. The two men shake hands, and the world's championship battle is on.

Mr. Rickard's pictures show the two men from all angles; from close to the infighting to the widest spaces apart. They show each movement of the lithe marvelous boxers so intimately that the audience can see the flexing of every muscle, each blow as it is delivered. Three-minute rounds they were in the ring that day; three-minute rounds they are on the screen. But in viewing the motion pictures you get a more intimate and splendid view than those who occupied the $50 seats in Jersey City.

Much has been written of Georges Carpentierd, heavyweight boxing champion of Europe. Still more has been said of Jack Dempsey, who defeated him in the memorable battle at Boyle's "Thirty Acres" in Jersey City on July 2, and who now is the undisputed champion of the world.

Tex Rickard, promoter of the match, knew that every man, woman and child interested in sports, would be anxious to see motion picture reproductions of this great contest, and with this in mind he had a battery of twenty cameras at work securing the most intimate views of the two contestants. These pictures, the authentic and official ones, will be seen here at the Palace Theater tonight and tomorrow.

In addition to the actual contest itself these pictures show all the sidelights of daily training for months in advance and all the movements of the two principals up to the time they entered the ring. The battle, blow shown in marvelous close-up motion pictures secured at the ringside.

There is a close view of Carpentier as he climbs into the ring and is, with clasped hands above his head, answering the enthusiastic cheers from the crowd of 90,000 spectators. There is an intimate view of Dempsey as he enters the ring accompanied by his manager, Jack Kearns. But Dempsey does not smile. His brows are ominously lowered as he casts one swift glance to the corner where his opponent stands. The two men shake hands, and the world's championship battle is on.

Mr. Rickard's pictures show the two men from all angles; from close to the infighting to the widest spaces apart. They show each movement of the lithe marvelous boxers so intimately that the audience can see the flexing of every muscle, each blow as it is delivered. Three-minute rounds they were in the ring that day; three-minute rounds they are on the screen. But in viewing the motion pictures you get a more intimate and splendid view than those who occupied the $50 seats in Jersey City.

"My friends often say 'Never saw you looking better; what are you doing for yourself?' and I always tell them: 'Well, I am taking Tanlac now,' recently declared Henry Spencer, 415 East St., Watertown, a well-known and highly respected citizen.

"Well, now, I have gained 15 pounds and feel better in every way and can work as well as ever, since taking Tanlac. I relish what I eat, with a fine appetite, and gas, indigestion, headache and dizziness are completely gone. Yes, sir, I just can't say too much for Tanlac."

WISCONSIN STARS WILL COMPETE IN BIG TRACK MEET

TEN BADGER ATHLETES WILL TAKE PART IN NATIONAL INTER-COLLEGIATE AT CHICAGO JUNE 17

Madison, Wis.—Ten Wisconsin stars will be entered in the National collegiate track and field meet to be held at Chicago June 17, participating in all events of the meet, Tom E. Jones, athletic director announced.

The Badger athletes who are to compete with the leading track men of 175 universities and colleges from every section of the country have all been placing among the principal contenders in this year's Western Conference meets.

Knollen Leads Team

Captain Knollen will lead the squad at Chicago. He has been running the 120 yard high hurdles in 15 seconds and has placed well in the 220 yard low hurdles. Knollin was the 1921 and 1922 outdoor conference high hurdles.

Walsh Spetz, the Badger sprinter will enter the 100 yard dash and the 220 yard dash. He has been running the century in 20 second and the 220 in 21 4-5 seconds. Coach Jones expects him to take points in both events.

Ramsay running his third year in the half mile is clipping the distance in under 2 minutes and is counted on to place well up among the runners at Chicago. He will also enter the mile. Schneider a new runner for Wisconsin will represent its team in the two mile. He is taking Finkle's place in the distance event, since the latter broke his ankle at the indoor conference.

Johnson In 440

The 440 yard dash is to be run by Johnson, competing with the varsity his second year. He is able to make the quarter in 50 seconds and may better his time. Hohlfeld will enter the half mile with Ramsay and is looked to for a place.

In the field events Guy Sundt will represent Wisconsin in the shot-put and the broad jump. He took second at the indoor conference by putting the 16 pound weight over 44 feet. His broad jump has run up to 22 feet 9 inches. Platten will do the high jumping for the Badgers. He is able to go 6 feet 4½ inches.

Nichols will throw the hammer and the discus for his team. He gets good distances in both events but has not placed in the conference meets up to the present.

Illinois Athletes Will Not Compete In National Meet

Urbana, Ill.—Harry Gill, coach of the Illinois track team, western conference champion, announced last night that the Illini would not compete in the national collegiate meet on Stagg field June 16 and 17. Gill said that he told the managers of the meet last year that he would not compete again, and that all press material listing the Illini as contestants was unauthorized.

Coach Gill, it was known last year, was greatly dissatisfied with the decision reached on the eve of the 1921 meet to count the points, 5, 3, 2, 1, and ½ for the respective five places, instead of 5, 4, 3, 2, 1, the method followed in the western and eastern intercollegiates.

Harris Well Rounded team

Gill considered that this favored the team of a few stars and handicapped the well rounded team with less brilliant performers. The limitation of teams to ten men also was not favored by the Illini mentor.

With seventeen men scoring points in the Western conference meet, the task of picking the best ten for the event on Stagg field would be formidable and would mean probable injustice to some good men.

Men Anxious For Vacation

The biggest factor however, in Gill's decision was the desire of the track men to close their work. Thirteen athletes are seniors and occupied with the festivities of commencement. They have been training since January and are weary. The team conferred with the coach this afternoon and approved his decision.

WISCONSIN STARS WILL COMPETE IN BIG TRACK MEET

TEN BADGER ATHLETES WILL TAKE PART IN NATIONAL INTER-COLLEGIATE AT CHICAGO JUNE 17

Madison, Wis.—Ten Wisconsin stars will be entered in the National collegiate track and field meet to be held at Chicago June 17, participation in all events of the affair, Tom E. Jones, athletic director announced.

The Badger athletes who are to compete with the leading track men of 175 universities and colleges from every section of the country, have all been placing among the principal contenders in this year's Western Conference meets.

Knellen Leads Team

Captain Knellin will lead the squad at Chicago. He has been running the 120 yard high hurdles in 15 seconds and has placed well in the 220 yard low hurdles. Knellin won the 1921 and 1922 outdoor conference high hurdles.

Ralph Spetz, the Badger sprinter will enter the 100 yard dash and the 220 yard dash. He has been running the century in 20 seconds and the 220 in 21 4-5 seconds. Coach Jones expects him to take points in both events.

Ramsay running his third year in the half mile is clipping the distance in under 2 minutes and is counted on to place well up among the runners at Chicago. He will also enter the mile. Schneider a new runner for Wisconsin will represent its team in the two mile. He is taking Finkle's place in the distance event, since the latter broke his ankle at the indoor conference.

Johnson In 440

The 440 yard dash is to be run by Johnson, competing with the varsity his second year. He is able to make the quarter in 50 seconds and may better his time. Hohlfeld will enter the half mile with Ramsay and is looked to for a place.

In the field events Guy Sundt will represent Wisconsin in the shot-put and the broad jump. He took second at the indoor conference by putting the 16 pound weight over 44 feet. His broad jump has run up to 22 feet 9 inches. Platten will do the high jumping for the Badgers. He is able to go 6 feet 4½ inches.

Nichols will throw the hammer and the discus for his team. He gets good distances in both events but has not placed in the conference meets up to the present.
